On the road to success, our students make community outreach a priority.

One of America's leading universities admired for its vision, education and innovation.

From their very first day on campus, students at Western University of Health Sciences are encouraged to try out new ideas, new approaches and to challenge themselves in a real-world environment that will closely resemble their future professional experience. Along the way, they help fulfill the university's goal of enhancing the quality of life throughout the region. More than 55 clubs and organizations on campus provide opportunities for students to participate in free community health screenings and educational services for residents of the Pomona area.

In service to humanity since 1977. For more information visit our website at www.westernu.edu.

"Student service to the community is as essential to medical education as facts and figures – together, they shape skilled and compassionate health care providers of the future."
– Founding President Philip Pumerantz
