Western University of Health Sciences
College of Osteopathic Medicine of the Pacific
D.O. Class of 2013 Vision Statement

As future osteopathic physicians, we commit to competent, compassionate and respectful patient care.

We will embrace diversity and promote equality in our communities.

We promise to remain true to osteopathic principles, even in times of trial, and to foster a trusting environment by honoring the patient's dignity.

Keeping an open mind to consider new practices, ideas and principles, we will continually grow as osteopathic physicians to better serve our patients and peers.

With selfless dedication, we commit ourselves to service through education and practice, strengthening osteopathic awareness.

We acknowledge our responsibility to support osteopathic identity and osteopathic manipulative treatment within the changing face of healthcare.

Transcending the uncomfortable and inconvenient, we will combine our individual strengths in a commitment to the progress of medicine and dedication to humanitarian service.

In recognition of osteopathic principles, we will balance our professional and personal lives as we overcome challenges in pursuit of excellence.

We will humbly remember our accountability to patients, colleagues and our profession.
