Join the College of Optometry in HEC – Classroom A for Squeezing in Nutrition: When 3 Minutes is All You Have by speaker Dawn Clifford, PhD, RD. You want to support your patients in making positive lifestyle changes, but with limited time, this can be a real struggle. How do you bring up the topic of nutrition without making the client feel judged or shamed? Motivational interviewing (MI) can help. MI is a patient-centered collaborative conversation style for strengthening a person's own motivation and commitment to change. In this session, you'll learn a few MI basics, along with some practical conversation skills you can start using right away. This webinar is sponsored by the Food and Nutrition Section and the Public Health Social Work Section. No CE Credit.
